

Poisonous Plant Research Laboratory Dedication
November 16, 2004

An appreciation breakfast was held Tuesday morning to express thanks to those who have supported the PPRL research program and who helped to bring our new building to life.

Dr. Rodney Brown, Deputy Undersecretary for Research, Education, and Economics receiving a plaque of recognition from Dr. Lynn F. James, Research Leader of PPRL

Dr. R. Dean Plowman, past administrator of ARS

Dr. Wilbert Blackburn, Area Director, Northern
Plains Area

Dr. Paul Rasmussen
accepting plaque in recognition of the support from Utah State University

Leland Hogan,
Utah Farm Bureau

Monte Weston,
Utah Cattlemen's Association

Jamie Gillmore,
Utah Woolgrowers Association

Some of the strongest supporters of the Poisonous Plant Research Laboratory include the various agricultural production groups. We were pleased to be able to recognize their support at Tuesday's breakfast.

Jill Jones, AJC Architects

Marvin Neff,
ABCO
Construction, Inc.

Booth
Wallentine

Dr. Paul Rasmussen

Monte Weston

Special recognition was given to individuals for their support and assistance to the Poisonous Plant Research Laboratory.

Robert Lundskog,
AJC Architects

Jim Huppi, USU

Absent:

Greg Graham, ARS NPA Engineer

Idaho Cattlemen's Association

Idaho Woolgrower's Association

Dr. Richard Keeler,
Research Chemist
(retired), PPRL

Dr. Blackburn presented Dr. James with a Certificate of Appreciation and also recognized Mrs. Marcile James for her support over the years.

The dedication ceremony was held in the USU Stan Laub Indoor Training Center. Exhibits and posters were displayed; several speakers were featured.

Mr. Glenn Mecham accepted the plaque of appreciation for Senator Robert Bennett

Edward Knipling, ARS Administrator, receives a plaque of appreciation from Dr. James and congratulates him on the new PPRL building.

And the ribbon is cut to dedicate the new building!